PREFACE

It is upwards of a quarter of a century since the University of Edinburgh formed the resolution of issuing a catalogue of the printed books in its Library. In the year 1897 the first steps were taken towards carrying this resolution into effect, but it was not till 1899 that the work of cataloguing was systematically begun. In the course of the next five or six years slip-entries had been made for the great majority of the volumes in the Library, but for a considerable period thereafter the work fell more or less into abeyance, principally owing to lack of funds ; and it was not till the year 1912 that the University was in a position to reserve a sum for the completion and printing of the Catalogue. The former task, involving as it did a revision of the slips and the incorporation of much additional material, occupied some three years, and it was only towards the close of the year 1915 that arrangements for printing could be definitely made. The first volume was issued in 1918, after which, owing to difficulties imposed by war conditions, the further printing of the work had to be suspended until the middle of 1919, when its resumption was found practicable. Since then it has proceeded to its close without interruption.

In issuing this final volume I feel that it is as much my duty as my desire to record my appreciation of the admirable work done for the Catalogue by the three members of the Library Cataloguing Staff, Miss Marjory Wilson, M.A.. Miss C. R. Lownie, M.A., and Miss Joann B. Hawick, M.A. Their services, both in the preparation of the catalogue-slips and in the tedious and exacting business of seeing the volumes through the press, call for the warmest possible acknowledgment ; and indeed any merit that the Catalogue can claim is mainly due to their zeal, diligence, and scholarship. To their names should be added that of Miss Ethel H. Cook, now Mrs. Laidlaw, whose very careful and competent bibliographical work was of the utmost benefit to the Catalogue from the time of her first joining the staff until a few years ago, when marriage withdrew her to less sophisticated activities.

Finally, I wish to thank Messrs. T. and A. Constable, the printers of the Catalogue, for the manner in which they have accomplished their arduous task. The typographical merits of the Catalogue may be left to speak for themselves, but it is only fair that I should give my grateful testimony to the remarkable ability shown by the Firm, and particularly by their staff of Readers, in dealing with a very difficult manuscript, and to their unfailing co-operation in the progress of the work.

FRANK C. NICHOLSON, Librarian.

NOTE

In recording their satisfaction at the completion of an enterprise initiated twenty-five years ago, the Library Committee desire to associate themselves with the well-deserved tribute which the Librarian has paid in the Preface to the zeal and competence of the cataloguing staff. At the same time they wish to take the opportunity of adding a word as to Mr. Nicholson's own services. His supervisory duties would have been responsible enough in any event. But the difficulties he has had to face were multiplied beyond all reasonable expectation by the War and its consequences. That they have been overcome so successfully and so speedily, is a remarkable testimony to his untiring devotion to the work. Of the other qualities he has displayed, the Catalogue itself will speak. It will be an enduring memorial of the scholarship and the bibliographical skill of its Editor, and will ensure for him the gratitude of many generations of readers.

GEO. MACDONALD,
Chairman of the Library Committee.

J. A. EWING,
Principal.
